Garlic has been traditionally used to fight off and treat the symptoms of the common cold and studies offer verification of its medicinal properties. If you have high blood pressure, adding garlic to your everyday diet would be a good way to improve your heart health naturally.